PETERS IS DISTRICT CHAMPION

G. G. Peters of Carbon won the district championship for golf on Sunday when the players from Rockyford and Irricana journeyed to Carbon to participate in the play offs for the Herald trophy. Mr. Peters turned in the lowest score for the eighteen holes, 78. This entitles him to go to Calgary and compete with the other winners of district clubs for the Provincial championship and he leaves for that point on Friday to join them. These play offs will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week.

Owing to the intense heat a number of the players did not complete their eighteen holes and so we cannot give a complete list of the scores, the major part of which were quite high owing no doubt to the shape of the course at the time of the play.

EXAM RESULTS to be PUBLISHED

Grade VIII examinations results for the Province will be published in the Calgary Daily Herald about the middle of August. In Grades IX, X and XI, statements of results will be sent to each student and to the School Board so that each student will know just how he or she stands and the marks received in each subject.

CARBON DISTRICT IS BADLY HAILED

On Tuesday evening about six o'clock Carbon and district was hit by a severe hail storm and considerable damage was done to nearly every crop in this part of the country, the destruction by wind and hail being 100 per cent. in some cases. Most of the farmers carried insurance so that the loss will not be as great as otherwise would have been the case. Up to the time of the storm the crops in this district were farther advanced than any other part of the Province and the wheat was nearly all out in head. The greatest damage was done to the crops South and East of Carbon while North and West the damage was not more than 10 per cent.

The Message Of The Bells

Canada, which in its sixty years as a confederated Dominion, has established more than one world record of worthy achievement, placed another to its credit on the anniversary of its Diamond Jubilee when, through the greatest linking up of radio broadcasting stations ever attempted, the ceremonies at the national capital were thrown into the air and carried to the uttermost parts of the Dominion, and listened to by hundreds of thousands of people from Prince Edward Island to British Columbia.

The achievement was not only spectacular but well worth-while. Direct from the Houses of Parliament, over a network of telegraph and telephone wires, to a total of twenty-three broadcasting stations, the messages of His Majesty the King and the nation's leaders were carried, interspersed with the singing of patriotic songs by great choirs, and the thrilling tones of the bells of the wonderful carillon installed in the Victory Tower at Ottawa.

For the moment the farthest east and the farthest west, and all the intervening territory, was in instant and common communion. Distance was annihilated, geographical barriers rendered of no account. The heart throbs of the nation, sounded in the national capital, were heard and felt throughout the length and breadth of the land. It was a union in spirit and sentiment, as well as in fact, undreamed of by the Fathers of Confederation.

Amazing as an engineering feat, it was still more wonderful as a demonstration of the national unity of the Canadian people. It was an unanswerable reply to all those doubting souls who have declared that, with its complexity of racial, religious, geographical and economic problems, Canada could never become a united people. Canadians everywhere felt a thrill of national pride as they listened to the message of the bells from their national capital.

The message of the bells was, however, not for Canada alone, but for the whole world. The inscription on the largest bell reads: "This carillon was installed by authority of Parliament to commemorate the Peace of 1918, and to keep in remembrance the service and sacrifice of Canada in the Great War," while around the rim of the bell are the words: "Glory to God in the Highest and on Earth Peace, Goodwill toward men."

In the Great War, Canada fought not for herself alone, but for all the world, for the maintenance of civilization and liberty everywhere, for justice and the right. In the great Victory Tower from which the bells ring out their message is located the Peace Memorial Chamber wherein on an altar rests the Book of Remembrance containing the names of the more than sixty thousand Canadian soldiers who made the supreme sacrifice for Canada and the world. It is a great monument, not to war, but to peace.

In his beautiful description of the Tower, the Memorial Chamber, and the Carillon, Premier Mackenzie King emphasized the idea underlying it all, and in his concluding words, after referring to the Angel's song to the shepherds: "Glory to God in the Highest and on Earth Peace, Goodwill toward men" he said: "Back to the skies it returns at noon today, not the echo of a mystical strain heard on a Judean moor, but the voice of a nation in thanksgiving and praise which will sound over land and sea to the uttermost parts of the earth."

That is the Message of the Bells, a message from this young, virile Dominion to all lands and all peoples, a message of Peace and Goodwill.

That is the Message of the Bells, a message rung out from their national capital to the people of Canada, a message calling them to continued patriotic service to a Canada at peace at home and with the world, a message urging the cultivation of a spirit of goodwill to all, a message from the bells in which let it be hoped, all old suspicions, rancors, and feelings of ill-will will be silenced and all racial, religious and political frictions drowned.

That is the Message of the Bells, a message to all who make Canada their home, irrespective of the land of their birth, to render deep devotion, patriotic service and, when needed, self-sacrifice to the Dominion, to show goodwill each to his neighbor, to co-operate together for the common good and the future peace, progress and prosperity of Canada.

Aviation Field For Lethbridge

Lethbridge is to have an aviation field available to commercial flying and aerial mail. The site is in North Lethbridge south of the standpipe and is sufficiently broad to allow of ten aeroplanes lying abreast. The location of air harbors follows the Federal Government's encouragement of aerial navigation for commercial purposes.

Canada Colonization Association

Col. J. S. Dennis Tells of Work Being Carried On

Col. J. S. Dennis, Commissioner of the Department of Colonization and Development, Canadian Pacific Railway, gave a very interesting address at Winnipeg recently, in which he outlined the work that is being carried on by this organization. He produced figures showing that a vast amount of work has been accomplished since the inception of the undertaking in 1919. The total value of the land and equipment colonized to date amounts to approximately $20,000,000, of that amount $16,000,000 represents the land, $3,000,000 is represented by chattels, and $1,000,000 additional buildings provided by the land owner.

"We have spent a considerable time to endeavor to find out what was the actual value of an agricultural family to Canada," said Col. Dennis, "and we are able to show from government returns that the value of a family, consisting of five, to the mercantile and industrial life of Canada amounted to $1,583 per annum, that is covering a budget of what they need in the way of clothing, shoes, etc. We also went to some trouble to find out what a family of the same size is worth to a transportation company, and we ascertained that a family of five adjacent to a railway, whose budget was the amount I have mentioned amounted to $716 per annum in transportation."

"It is a matter of simple figuring and does not need any mathematician to make it perfectly clear to the business interests of Canada what the results will ultimately be if we increase the movement of our agricultural families from the small numbers we are now able to get to a wide margin. The smaller places particularly in the West have a big interest in this, because every 10 families mean to the merchants in that town a $15,000 per annum for supplies which the merchant furnishes. The question of what it means to the transportation companies appeals very strongly to the executive of both railways, because we have these two companies recruiting the people that we can absorb, placing them on the land, and giving them attention after we get them here. These departments are costing the railways large sums of money, and I do not think it is unfair to say that the people of Canada as a whole do not appreciate what this means to them in immediate returns. It is true we obtain the benefit derived from the transportation of these people, but this is a small item compared to the benefit to Canada generally.

"We have compiled figures, which show that the C.P.R. expended $70,000,000 in colonization and development of Western Canada, and that sum is in excess of the total sum which has been expended by the Dominion Government and further considerable expenditures are being made in a direct effort to speed up the movement of desirable colonists to Canada for developing the unproductive land, of which a very considerable proportion will bring no direct returns to the Canadian Pacific Railway."

India Provides Remedy

Oils Extracted From Tree Seeds Used in Treatment of Leprosy

It is a notable fact, says an article in the Times of India, that India, which is believed to contain one fourth of the leper population of the world, also provides the material from which has been derived the most potent remedy for that fearful disease.

It is simply another proof of the wisdom of nature in placing a remedy contiguous to every disease. It is from the seeds of trees growing in Assam and in South India that the oils are extracted, from injecting solutions of which Sir Leonard Rogers proved that the disease could be most successfully attacked.

London's Tribute to Canada

Daily Mail Says Dominion is "Nation With a Noble Soul"

Under the caption of "A Nation With a Noble Soul," The Daily Mail's chief editorial referring recently to the Confederation Jubilee celebrations in Canada said: "The only misfortune from the British standpoint is that owing to the combined influence of the low and low birth rate in Great Britain the British proportion of immigrants seems destined to decline."

"It was never true that the happiest states are those which have no history and in the last 50 years the Dominion has helped to make history, and has influenced world events. Her statements originated the idea of Imperial preference which will be certain of realization hereafter when the British people discover the peril of one-sided free trade."

"The Canadian monument at Vimy Ridge will remind men for centuries of what Canada did in the Great War and how, in the hour of battle and sudden death, she was not unfaithful to the call of honor and love."

"The Dominion today has given proof that she sets the ideal above the material and is a nation with a noble soul."

THIN, WATERY BLOOD ALWAYS DANGEROUS

If Not Corrected Serious Results
Sure to Follow

In no trouble is delay or neglect more dangerous than in anaemia—thin, watery blood. It is very common in young girls and in persons who are overworked or confined within doors. It makes its approach in so stealthy a manner that it is often well developed before the trouble is recognized.

But taken in time the tonic treatment through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, so enriches the blood that good health and strength is speedily regained. The correction of anaemic conditions by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is as certain as anything can be. Miss Teresa Healey, Dunroven, Que., is one of the many anaemic sufferers who has found new health through the use of this medicine. She says:—"I cannot express too warmly my thanks for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. I was suffering from a badly run-down condition. I was very nervous, had little desire for food, and would feel tired out at the least exertion. In this condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before using them very long found my health gradually improving, and under their continued use was completely restored. For this reason I earnestly advise all weak girls to take these pills, feeling sure that they will do for others what they did for me."

Send your name and address to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and they will mail you free a useful little book on "Building Up the Blood." The pills can be obtained through any druggist or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Helmi had the quality Miss Abbie lacked; she was not afraid of anything. Miss Abbie read it in her eyes, in her carriage, in her pose, and for that reason she was attracted to her. All her timid life Miss Abbie had craved to be fearless and unconcerned about public opinion. That was the biggest thing in life, not to be afraid of anyone. Miss Abbie had heard it out very wickedly once. It made her shudder at the time, but it fascinated her too—"So live that you can look the whole world in the face and tell it to go to—!" Miss Abbie could not even think the word. She struck the horse with the lines instead. He, believing her to be merely knocking off a fly, switched his tail appreciatively.

Miss Abbie would adopt the girl; yes, she would. If the girl was open for adoption she would be adopted by Miss Abigail J. Moore, Splinter.

Helmi directed her to the Yale Hotel, and Miss Abbie, tying Jasper to the ring in the sidewalk, entered. Tying Jasper anywhere, at any time, was what's called now a complimentary gesture.

They entered. Helmi, striding through the front corridor down the narrow hall, where coats and hats of the diners hung, and so through to the kitchen. The "help" were not allowed the use of the front door, but Helmi reasoned that on her off day she had temporarily ceased to be help. Therefore the front door.

Miss Abbie, glowing with her new resolve, was brave even to recklessness.

"I found this young girl being chased by two young ruffians, and brought her home," said Miss Abbie to the cook, who stood in the middle of the floor with a long complicated can-opener in her hand. "I would like to know more about her if I may. She interests me; I am a worker among girls. She speaks no English, I see."

Maggie Kenny politely handed Miss Abbie the one vacant chair, and laid down the can-opener before replying.

"It's little I know myself, ma'am, only that my sister in Saint Paul sent her to me to look after—and it's a handful she is, Ma'am, though a good girl as I ever saw in her work, and smart and willin'." She's a queer girl in the sudden way her temper rises.

"Do you think I might have her to come and live with me? I am all alone and have a little means," Miss Abbie blushed becomingly. "She seems so lonely here, not able to speak, that I feel sorry for her, and besides, I need someone. I would be good to her."

Maggie considered the petitioner critically.

"I can give you references," said Miss Abbie eagerly, "and I would be pleased to have you come yourself to see my home if you would be so good."

In all her long experience in dealing with the public it was the first time anyone had suggested that Margaret Kenny should look at references. She had been asked to produce them, but not to look at them. She wrinkled her forehead in deep thought. Maggie Kenny knew that a hotel with its comers and goers was no place for Helmi; besides she liked the genteel lady who offered references.

Miss Abbie won.

CHAPTER IV.

Miss Abbie J. Moore lived in a little neat house in Chestnut Street, in an impeccable neighborhood, where everyone had a sleeping porch on the front of their house, with a square of grass at the back in the centre of which a clothes-line reel stood like a wind-inverted umbrella every day except Monday. On Monday the bare wires bloomed and fluttered in the breeze, running before it in vain circles. A sleeping porch in front, a square of grass behind, and a decent little mortgage covering all—but so arranged that one paid the interest in the form of rent. The building agency made that very clear. "Live in your own house and pay as you live," was a sentence oft repeated.

Miss Abbie kept two impeccable boarders, who came and went noiselessly, left their rubbers at the door, came in early, had breakfast at the same hour every morning except Sunday, when they had none at all; who shovelled the snow from the walk in winter; sent her a white lily at Easter, and a red cyclamen at Christmas; who paid on the first day of the month except when the first came on Sunday, and in that case made the payment on Saturday.

Miss Abbie referred to them as "Mr. A" and "Mr. B,"—but whether this gave any clue to the initials of their names remains a matter of doubt.

Miss Abbie's house reflected her excellent character. She believed in having things about her plain but good. The wood in her house was oak, the curtains net, the hangings a sedate brown, "snuff" brown to be more exact. The carpet on the living room and on the stairs was of the duldest shades of brown and fawn she could get, and the pattern of geometrical design. Her pictures were steel engravings and enlarged pictures of grim visaged departed relatives.

"That's Mother, the winter before she died—it was working on her then, but we didn't know it. This is Father taken when he lay on his death-bed. The man came to the house."

This is Aunt Mary. She ain't lookin' very cheerful but you can't wonder; she went straight from the doctor's office when he told her he was afraid she hadn't very long to live. This is my youngest sister. She never was strong; her kidney floated all the time and killed her at last. She knew it was gettin' worse, so she got one of these for each of us the last Christmas.

In Miss Abbie's family it seemed that a photograph was something of an "intimation."

Her steel engravings were sombre in character, too—"The Stag at Bay," bleak, lonely, desperate; The Doctor sitting by the sick child, Wellington greeting Blucher on the field of Waterloo, with dead men under their horses' feet.

Helmi now for the first time in her life had a room to herself, and her own little bed, a gorgeous one in her eyes with its chapel of white enamelled flowers tied with a bow of brass ribbon at both head and foot. The top quilt was a patched one of blue and white, in the pattern known as the "Pavements of New York," and for chilly nights there was a small elder-down flowered in appleblossoms.

Miss Abbie was grieved to see in Helmi a growing tendency to stand before the mirror in the elmwood stand. She was attracted by what she saw there, for it was the first mirror she had looked into which did not make her face look wavy. However, when the minister's sister, the psycho-analyst, pointed out to Miss Abbie that Helmi seemed to be growing conscious of her personal appearance Miss Abbie dismissed the matter loftily.

"One must not blame her, Miss Terry," she said in that sweet tone she always adopted when she was working toward a climax; "the curves of a young face are good to look at. There are certain privileges we must accord to youth, my dear. Now, with you and me the glass cannot exercise the same fascination, though, I fear it will not be counted to us for righteousness that we resisted."

Miss Abbie noted with some alarm the progress Helmi was making in adapting herself to her new life. Helmi's hair was no longer brushed straight back, braided and tied with a black ribbon. It came down over her ears now in the "buns" so favored at that time. The high collars on Helmi's print blouses had disappeared, and quite sufficient white neck was revealed; and when she took her down to see the stores she noticed how she lingered in front of the pretty dresses; and when they came to a millinery window Helmi stopped so suddenly that Miss Abbie collided with her and Helmi did not even know it!

Miss Abbie felt herself at a loss to know what to do about this. Evidently Helmi had a deep love for finery, and Miss Abbie trembled for her when she thought of the evils that are in the world. "And I don't blame her," she thought. "It's all men's faults after all! They want to see women dressed up like peacocks; they won't take much notice of them if they are not. I know I was always the homespun, flat-heeled, rainy-day-hat kind, and what good did it do me? Still, she will have to be guided."

When Miss Abbie went into the kitchen to tell Helmi what to get for dinner she found her busy polishing the tin dishpan so that she could see her face in it. So absorbed was she in her pleasant task she did not hear Miss Abbie coming.

Then and there Miss Abbie decided in favor of "snuff brown" for Helmi's gingham dresses! She had thought of henna and burnt orange.

Across the corner from Miss Abbie's prim little house a shingled bungalow with mullioned windows raised its symmetrical roof among the trees. Miss Abbie said it looked like a California house with its sun-porch in front and sleeping verandah screened from the world with green and white canvas at the back. It was set exactly in the middle of the plushy lawn with hie bushes at intervals all around the fence; a Maltese cross of red and white geraniums; a hedge of blue delphiniums in front of the lattice fence which divided the front lawn from the back garden; window boxes of red geraniums, white daisies and blue lobelia, upstairs and down; a sunnier-house grown over with canary vine, a caragana hedge, neatly trimmed to that flat surface so much coveted by hedge growers. It looked, indeed, like the perfectly kept home of a substantial citizen.

Japan's Ancient Royal Family

No Other Dynasty Has Been So Long Lived

It is difficult to realize the antiquity of the Japanese royal family, for it goes back 2,500 years. Emperor Yoshitomo is the one hundred and twenty-third of the Yamato house to hold the scepter. From the beginning there has been no other dynasty in Japan. Perhaps this has something to do with the Japanese belief that their emperor is descended from the gods. Jimu Tenno, settled his people in Japan and founded the royal line in 660 B.C. Yoshitomo, like every other wielder of the Japanese scepter since, is his direct descendant. In all history there is nothing else like this. The Egyptian dynasties were mostly short-lived. The Chinese imperial houses came and went. The whole series of Roman emperors lasted brief periods compared with this Japanese line. The English, French, Spanish, German, Russian royal houses were kaleidoscope beside the Japanese.

Powerful Medicine.—The healing properties in six essential oils are concentrated in every bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, forming one of the most beneficial liniments ever offered to the use of man. Many can testify as to its power in allaying pain, and many more can certify that they owe their health to it. Its wonderful power is not expressed by the small price at which it sells.

Historic Relic Found

Ottawa Woman Has Bagpipes Played At Culloden Moor

The historic bagpipes that piped for the lost cause at Culloden Moor when the defeated forces of "Bonnie Prince Charlie" were rallied by its strains have been located in Ottawa. Their present owner, Miss Francis Nolan, has already refused an offer of $4,000 for them from a Scottish museum. The pipes were last used when the late John Brown, descendant of the John Brown who played them at Culloden Moor, piped a tune when King Edward VII, then Prince of Wales, laid the cornerstone of the old Parliament Buildings at Ottawa.

Abstain from all appearance of evil.—1 Thess. v. 22.

God does not say, "Be beautiful," "Be wise." He taught that man in man will over-pulse. Only "Be good," the tender Father cries.

We seek to mount the still ascending stair. To greatness, glory, and the crowns they bear. We mount to fall heart-sickened to despair.

The purposes of life misunderstood. Battle and wound us, but God only would. That we should heed His simple words, "Be good!"

Goodness is the investment that never fails. In the music of the harp that trembles round the world, it is the insisting on this which thrills us.

RED HOT JULY DAYS HARD ON THE BABY

July—the month of oppressive heat; red-hot days and sweltering nights; is extremely hard on little ones. Diarrhoea, dysentery, colic and cholera infantum carry off thousands of precious little lives every summer. The mother must be constantly on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they come on suddenly to fight them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the hot summer as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels and stomach, and an occasional dose given to the well child will prevent summer complaint, or if the trouble does come on suddenly will banish it. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Germany leads the world in commercial aviation. The records of one German company shows more business than those of all the companies of France, which ranks second.

On the east shore of the Salton Sea, in the Colorado Desert, jets of live steam issue from holes in the ground and are used for campers to cook their food.

THEY SUFFER NO MORE

Two Women Owe Health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Adolphe, Manitoba.—"I was very weak and had great pains during my periods so that I could not sweep the floor. The pains were in the right side and extended to the left and then downwards. It seemed as if the body was heavy and upside down. It is for these troubles I took the Vegetable Compound. I saw about it in a paper and one woman prevailed on me to take it. It has helped me in every way, the pains are less, and I have more appetite. It is a pleasure to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to other women."—Mrs. J. L. COURCHAINE, St. Adolphe, Manitoba.

Found Great Relief

Toronto, Ont.—"I am at the Change of Life with hot flashes, dizziness, weakness and nervousness. I had head noises and was short of breath. I was this way about six months when I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers. I have taken eight bottles so far and found great relief."—Mrs. R. J. SALMON, 112 Lawlor Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Printed every Thursday at Carbon, Alta.
$2.00 a year

The Editor expects to spend the next week or so at his home in Kaslo, British Columbia, and will leave the first of July for that point. As a newspaper man we receive a railway pass to our destination, otherwise we would not be able to make the trip. We tell you this for the purpose of dispelling any illusions as to the monetary affluence of weekly newspaper men in general and the editor of this sheet in particular. Needless to say if dependent on our own resources we would have to mortgage the whole plant to make the trip.

The paper will be published each week as usual and any items of interest will be greatly appreciated if phoned or brought to the Chronicle
Office

If you have any job printing to be done let us have it immediately or leave it with our representative at the Office and he will see that it is done with "neatness, accuracy and dispatch."

Can you see any result?
Yes, the roller is much thinner.

So Charley's baby is simply crazy over him?

Yes; it sleeps all day while he's away so it can stay awake when he's home at night and entertain him.

BEHIND the beauty of Chevrolet there is an abundance of strength and stamina, just as there is a great store of surplus power.
The rugged channel steel frame, the husky banjo-type rear axle, the powerful valve-in-head engine and every detail of construction combine to defy the ravages of wear and tear, of hills and ruts, of mud and sand, of extreme of climate and of hard, continuous usage.
As Chevrolet has been designed for beauty, powered for performance, planned for economy — so Chevrolet has been BUILT FOR ENDURANCE.
And this — the most Beautiful, the most Powerful and the most Rugged Chevrolet in Chevrolet History — is selling at new, low prices, the lowest for which Chevrolet has ever been sold in Canada.
